Our Purpose

The Emblem Constitution prosaically states that "the purpose of the Emblem is to provide a lasting memento of the students, activities, etc., etc." That doesn't half express it. In years to come it will be a little knot hole in the wall of yesterday that permits a peep at all those wonderful times we've had. When the "tired school teacher" returns home from a hard day's work, she can drop into a chair, pick up this volume, and throw cares and worries to the wind. From the depths of the chair first a sigh will emerge, then a chuckle, and finally a hearty laugh. After two hours of such unmitigated joy she will be able to resume the cares of the nation with renewed vigor.

Such a collection of desirable material cannot be found anywhere else. Should we stop to enumerate them, there would be no space for anything else. Where can you find such a fund of enjoyable literature? Pathos, humor, everything from the sublime to the ridiculous, human interest stories, free verse poetry; everything that could be desired is to be found within these covers.

All the joys of hockey and baseball, the thrill of victory, the disappointment of defeat can be re-lived when we, as alumnae, read this book. It will bring to mind the "old swimming hole," and the tremors of our first dive into the limpid depths of that fascinating expanse of unadulterated H₂O.

But the Emblem has a larger aim than all this. We hope that by keeping these happy days before the graduates we may be able to stimulate and keep alive a strong desire to be an active Alumna, to revisit the scene of all those treasured experiences, and to see again the Faculty who guided us safely from young manhood and womanhood to responsible adulthood.

In the Alumnae there is something of interest for everyone; an Athletic Association for those so inclined, an Alumnae Review for the literary, and field upon field of unexplored territory for the ambitious and adventurous. With these ends in view we submit for your approval the Emblem of 1924.

—Ye Editor.

Appreciation to Our Faculty

Taken collectively and individually, they stand for the age-old principles of integrity, fairness and good will. Living so much of one's daily life with them, and coming in contact with their personalities in all sorts of situations, it is impossible for anyone to remain untouched by the far-reaching effects of characters that are noble, intellects that are superb, and hearts that are golden.

The greatest quality of our faculty is comradeship. Nowhere else is there exhibited that spirit of friendliness and regard that radiates from teacher to pupil as it does here at Normal. It is their genial fellowship that prompts them to enter into all our activities, often, we know, at a sacrifice of time and pleasure.

And then, who is there who was afraid to take his sorrows and perplexities to one of them, and who was not met with understanding and sympathetic interest?

Many times when life seemed darkest their words of gladness and wisdom have caused more than one of us to take heart and smile again.

We, the class of '24, wish to express our sincere and heartfelt appreciation to the Faculty of the Normal College. We are as yet just dimly conscious of the great effort on your part to send us forth efficient and confident as to our futures. You have given us all that is best in example and ideals. We do not seek to repay you for all you have done for us. We know that we cannot. We can, however, and do honor, respect, and admire your personalities and accomplishments. Imitation is sincerest flattery, and it is our desire and resolution as teachers to imbue our students with humanistic attitude similar to yours, the same perfected ideals, and the same spirit of co-operation and industry that we have taken from the Faculty of the Normal College.

Wm B. Owen.

Appreciation to the Senior Class Advisers

Our goal is reached. We are graduates. The way has been sunny and smooth for some, but for the most of us it has been long and rough. Indeed, many of us would have thrown down our burdens and given up had it not been for your kindly counsel and sincere interest in us. There is not one among us who is not better for having experienced your wisdom and consideration during the past two years in which we have known you.

To Mary P. Blount, we, the Upper Seniors, extend our gratitude for your intensive and helpful interest in us at all times. You have entered into all our class activities with a spirit that insured their success. You have tried to know us all personally and we are grateful. In years to come the memory of you shall stand for much of our happiness while at Normal.

To W. Wilbur Hatfield, we, the Lower Seniors, raise our flag of admiration and trust. Other classes at Normal envy us and they have cause. For leadership, friendliness, co-operation, and originality you are unequaled. Your name shall urge us upward toward those heights of position and personality which you have already reached.

And now, dear advisers, we say Good-bye. In our efforts toward achievement you have been our inspiration, in times of doubt you have been our guiding stars and confidants, and now, in the hour of success, you become our lasting and grateful memory.

Class History

This is station CNC at the Chicago Normal College. Today we will broadcast to you the story of the largest graduating class the college has ever had.

Let the present recall the past. It is September, 1922. A group of over two hundred and fifty smiling and eager faces enter the portals of that famous institution known as the Chicago Normal College.

For a few days they wander about, all too conscious of being "Freshies," but this sense of newness soon wears off.

Not much time is lost before this group becomes organized as the class of June, 1924. They draw up a constitution and elect their officers. Helen McCormick is chosen to be the first president. She proves herself to be a very able leader.

Athletes play an important part in the "Normal" life of this class. Hockey sticks are being wielded skillfully. A hockey tournament is played. Section three wins honors for itself and its class. In swimming also this section stands out prominently. Helen Joyce gains sprays for their wreath of laurels.

Christmas draws nigh. They celebrate with a well arranged program. Yet in the wake of the festive season stand the formidable "exams," but the class conquers this dragon and emerges triumphantly as the Upper Juniors.

Still under the leadership of Helen McCormick and her able associates, they march on. Flunk warnings act as danger signals, "exams" as barriers, but "over the top" to victory they go. A long vacation their reward.

You are still listening to station CNC. We will now tell you part two of the history of the class of June, 1924.

September again. Once more the portals swing wide. Eagerly they enter as Lower Seniors. They choose Betty Haberstein as their guide. Confidently do they now approach the ladder of knowledge, impatient to reach the uppermost rung. It is at this time that many of the class try out for the Senior Dramatic Club. Much talent is discovered.

And now the time approaches for them to put into practice the things that Normal has taught them.

All seem to enjoy the period of cadetting, but are nevertheless glad to be reunited at their own school.

They enter upon the Upper Senior semester with Helen Stanton leading them surely and safely toward their goal.

Then follows a busy term, one filled with planning and preparation for class and graduation day.

We sincerely hope the realization will be as pleasant as the anticipation.

You have been listening to station CNC. We are signing off until September, 1924, when you will hear of this class's work with Chicago's youth.

Good luck!

Betty Haverstem, Pres.

Muriel Ferguson, Vice-Pres.

Martha Armitage, Sec.

Agnes Falahey, Treas.

Class Will

I, the class of June, 1924, of the Chicago Normal College, being of sound mind, memory, and understanding, do make, publish, and declare my last will and testament in the manner following:

I die in the spirit of the Chicago Normal College, in which I was born and in which I took root, budded and blossomed.

I have always had reason to be pleased with my dear lower classmen. I retain for them the most profound sentiment and hope that they will fulfill all expectations I hold of them on my decease. I make the following provisions for their benefit:

1. I leave to said classes divers black, white, and otherwise rats, certain caged rabbits, and some ring doves, all living; also a bevy of birds and animals stuffed, no less than one hundred preserved insects, not living, a noteworthy collection of frog's eggs (not to be mistaken for caviar), one maimed skeleton, and a menagerie of bacteria of many sizes, shapes, and strengths. I will all these to my student survivors on condition that they enjoy their company, holding such instructive conversations with or about them as I have held. All these bequests are within the boundaries of the Chicago Normal College in such places as their keepers and nurses have seen fit to place them.

2. I give to said classes the lunchroom, to be used as their own fancies dictate. I do not impose appetite as a condition.

3. I give and bequeath to them also the use of the library, the office, the bridge, the corridors and the Arts building and mildly recommend that the conduct in such places be dictated by the traditions in existence therein and not by personal whims or desires. Violate this recommendation at your own peril.

4. It is my will that all choruses and assemblies I surrender up to you be attended. However, I find from experience that rigorous limitations are apt to have an opposite effect from that intended. Therefore, I command: do not attend choruses or assemblies on pain of death.

5. I give to and impose upon said lower classmen the tyranny of the bells. It is my absolute direction, however, that they be obeyed—as far as possible. Otherwise it is my desire that all other priceless bequests willed to these students be rendered null and void.

6. In mitigation for this rather arbitrary imposition, I give and bequeath the social hour and the swimming tank to my student beneficiaries for their amusement. There is one restriction. The swimming tank is a place for racing, slow locomotion, or merely splashing. It was not intended as a source of refreshment.

7. To said classes I bequeath all lockers which my members have hitherto known as their own. I give them also all coat hangers, shelves, nails, etc., which may be found in those recesses. They have borne up under many burdens in the past and will, no doubt, continue to do so in the future.

8. I also give and bequeath to said classes the privilege of perusal of all furniture, pictures (including family portraits), works of art, silver, plate, ornaments, bric-a-brac, books, china, glass, implements and plants which may be within the walls of the Chicago Normal College at the time of my decease.

To the faculty I give and bequeath:

9. Such of my work as it may deem excellent enough to be used as inspiration to succeeding classes. In order that this vast amount of material be accessible to all, I recommend that it be gathered into volumes according to subject, placed in the library, and listed in the card catalogue.

10. Also, the memory of a class which gave excellent attention on all occasions, prepared homework with exemplary regularity and care, and exhibited such mental powers as had never been heard of before and, I am inclined to believe, never will be again. All other memories, I wish understood, are not anyone's legal property and it is my desire that they be interred with me.

Lastly, to the faculty I will the succeeding classes and to said classes, the faculty, each to be regarded as the property of the other. In order to be nonpartisan, I extend my sympathy to both.

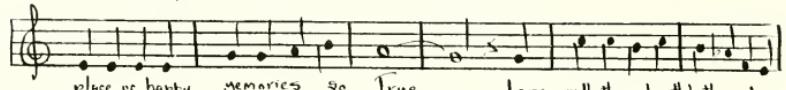

Also, to the students, I make a special gift of my advisers. They are the cream of teachers, for they are not only capable of advising but do advise. They are as wise as Socrates, as helpful as a senior, and as sympathetic as a junior.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my seal this 20th day of June, 1924.

THE CLASS OF 1924.

In Leavetaking

The player lifts his hands, the song grows old;
A few wan notes weave echoes whisperingly,
But not for long. They dwindle sleepily
To vapid silence, but when years unfold,
When other songs are played, some drab and cold,
Ghosts will rise to stir the memory
With thoughts of all that sweet, gone minstrelsy,
Awaking faint delights in things long told.
Ah, well, the curtain falls upon one play,
The actors, laughing, think of honors new
And, pausing, take farewell of those they may Shortly speak of just as folks they knew.
Yes, let them stop a moment, let them say
That gentle word—one short, one sad "Adieu."

—Janice L. Fink.

To Our Advisers

And what is so rare as a perfect adviser?
So said we once, but now we are wiser.
We found here at Normal some people so good
That our poor hearts were changed from stone and from wood
To hearts overflowing with joy and surprise;
And our smiles came out brightly, we opened our eyes
To the fact that at Normal we'd each found a friend,
Someone to help us, to guide us right to the end.

When skies were clear and blue, when seas were mild and still,
When we were bravely, surely struggling up the hill,
We knew that you rejoiced with us, that you were happy, too;
And most of our success we know is largely due to you.
When the seas of knowledge were stormy and rough,
Your sympathy and aid made the waves less hard to buff.
The way was hard and weary, we nearly ran aground,
But our pilots, our advisers, brought us home all safe and sound.

Advisers you have been, advisers you'll be
To some other class as timid as we.
But we'll always remember and cherish the thought
That once 'pon a time 'twas we that you taught.
In being advisers you also were friends,
And the chords of our friendship we'll never let bend,
For the two years at Normal were brightened indeed
By advisers who helped us in our times of need.

Class History

(February, 1925.)

The last time we appeared in print we were but in the first stage of our evolution—Lower Juniors. Now we have nearly reached the last, the most perfect stage—Upper Seniors. Our Upper Junior and Lower Senior semesters have been the stepping stones to our final goal. This interim has been filled with joy and sorrow, pleasure and work, the ever-present ingredients in the recipe called Life.

Our school term has, indeed, been a little life in the living. We are in reality a miniature community fashioned somewhat after our own country and governed somewhat similarly. Our class stands for our country and our sections for its states. Our class officers are like our federal officials; our section officers are like our state officials. Under this regime we have lived and prospered.

In our Upper Junior semester we came into the limelight when we were asked to furnish the Thanksgiving Program. We also entered enthusiastically into the athletic and social affairs of the school.

In our Lower Senior semester, Gertrude Curtin, Gervaise Strom, Lillian Ostrom and Kathryn Durr held the offices of President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer, respectively. During this semester several important events took place. The Senior Dramatic tryout and initiation took some of our budding dramatists. Those who were going out to practice were given a delightful party by the remainder of the class. And last, but not least, we had our elections for our Upper Senior officers. The elected were Catherine Thiele, Alice Quinn, Gervaise Strom and Astrid Sandstrom. May they guide successfully our Ship of State on its last voyage in this sea of knowledge.

Upper Senior Class Officers

KATHERINE THIELE, President
GERVAISE STROM, Secretary

Alice Quinn, Vice-President
Astrid Sandstrom, Treasurer

Lower Senior Class Officers

GERTRUDE CURTIN, President
LILLIAN OSTROM, Secretary

GERVAISE STROM, Vice-President
KATHRYN DURR, Treasurer

Upper Junior Class Officers

ETHEL McCAFFREY, President
KATHRYN DURR, Secretary

GERTRUDE CURTIN, Vice-President
REGINA DEVINE, Treasurer

The Class Will

We, the graduating Class of 1924 $\frac{1}{2}$, of the NORMAL SCHOOL of the City of Chicago, County of Cook, and State of Illinois, being of sound and disposing mind, due to the completion of two long years of college work, and now emerging as the most exemplary product of the august faculty, do hereby make, publish, ordain, and declare this our last will and testament in the manner following:

First: We direct that our executor pay all our debts and funeral expenses as soon after our departure as convenient so to do.

Second: We direct that a suitable and fitting monument be erected to our memory on the landing of the center stairway, upon which our names shall be inscribed in such a manner as to impress upon the future generation of students our everlasting fame.

Third: We bequeath to the undergraduates the care of this beautiful structure of learning, the memory of which will remain long in our lives, for here an infinite store of riches has been offered us, friendships formed and bonds of affection wrought which time cannot easily sever; also, to procrastinating students, a school clock which automatically loses fifteen minutes every morning and gains fifteen minutes during the school days.

Fourth: To the faculty we will a student body eager for work, joyous over exams, and delighting in special assignments; also the use of our new playgrounds and tennis courts in order that they may keep that "schoolgirl complexion" and that "Apollo-like" figure.

Fifth: To Mr. Owen we leave the problem (not the solution) of finding suitable instructors for the ever-increasing number of students.

Sixth: To Mr. Shepherd we leave the gratification of his wish for a perfectly organized and systematized student government.

Seventh: To Miss Cabell we leave a social hour in which no other dances are known but the Minuet, the Virginia Reel, and the old-fashioned square dance.

Eighth: To all future seniors we leave the tamed and untamed mammals which are found in Room 13, with all their accessories; also the fifty pickled varieties of insects which repose in Room 9.

Ninth: To all whom it may concern we yield our commodes and mouse-proof lockers at which so many enjoyable—yes, and fearful moments have been passed.

Tenth: To the Psychological Department we bequeath a new cat and an up-to-date minute clock.

Eleventh: To the Office we leave the installation of a new system which will insure the writing of two absence cards.

Twelfth: To the Education Department we bequeath many new sets of intelligence tests and the unhampered use of the Library at all hours of the day.

Thirteenth: To all future mermaids we leave the use of our swiming tank. Use it freely and fear not—nothing is charged for all the water which you swallow.

Fourteenth: We hereby name, nominate and appoint Walter Wilber Hatfield executor of this our last will and testament.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hand and seal this 20th day of June, A. D. 1924.

Graduating Class of 1924 $\frac{1}{2}$,
Alice Stubbs and Harriet Cable, Class Attorneys.

To The Faculty

Where e'er we go, what e'er we do,
We'll not forget our debt to you—
To you, the Normal Faculty,
The moulderers of our destiny.

In these two years so quickly past
You've taught us lessons, ones to last
Through all the years which we shall live,
That to mankind our best we'll give.

"Tis true we've learned by coining here
That "two plus two" is not so clear,
That "Chicken Little" is hard to say
And the easiest thing isn't "do, mi, re."

Now we talk with ease of the proboscis
Of that ever famous balanoglossus.
We traced a star in psychology
And talked of mental imagery.

As artists we can make a frieze;
Easily we name twenty-five trees;
Limestone from quartz we can readily tell;
Discipline problems we know full well.

Baseball and hockey we learned to play;
We made a history map every day;
Streptococcus we'll ne'er forget—
But this is only part of our debt.

The lesson for which we most give thanks,
Before we join the teachers' ranks,
Is the one of service to the world—
We'll keep that banner ever unfurled.

So where e'er we go, what e'er we do,
We'll not forget our debt to you—
To you, the Normal Faculty,
The moulderers of our destiny.

—Regina Devine.

The Upper Junior Class History

Last September, when Normal opened her portals, there entered the largest class in her history. Five hundred as eager and curious as any "Freshies" made their appearance in the auditorium. Bewilderment was not altogether one sided for even the students from the year before and the faculty were wondering what to do with this avalanche of knowledge-seeking humanity. They upset the school equilibrium but soon set it up again with their stanch support. A new numbering system was needed for the fourteen sections. The Kindergarten and the Manual Training groups were of unusual size and the Household Arts group was so large that it had to form two sections. After the organization of seventeen sections the need of new teachers became urgent and seventeen were added to the faculty.

The class organization was a problem. Under Doctor John H. Whitten, chairman of the advisers, section advisers were assigned and the sections became organized units from which the class got together as a whole and elected its officers to assume efficient control. From each section was chosen one who was considered most capable. From this group of peers were elected the following first semester officers:

President Veronica Cruise
Vice-President Catherine O'Neill
Secretary Violette Schmetzter
Treasurer Helen Farr
Student Council Representatives.....

..... Hannah Divine and Elizabeth Wade

The Normalite Representatives were chosen for their fitness for the position. They were Elizabeth Sheffield and Helen Christophersen. In the next semester the same system was used in the selection of class officers. The artistic talent of the class was displayed in varied posters hung high and low on the walls of the corridors. The election brought exciting competition and the results of this gave the following Upper Junior class officers:

Lower Junior Class Officers

Veronica Cruise, Pres.

Catherine O'Neill, Vice-Pres.

Violette Schmetzter, Sec.

Helen Farr, Treas.

President.....Catherine Fitz Gibbons
Vice-President.....Mary Smith
Secretary.....Ruth Roberts
Treasurer.....Mary Margaret Lyon
Student Council Representatives.....
.....Helen Von Thaden and George Padden
Normalite Representative.....Clara Delehardt

The Normalite representatives for the Household Arts and Manual Training groups were chosen from this class.

For all the school activities there are a number of adherents; secretary and treasurer of the Fellowship Club, chairman and secretary of the Folk Dancing Club, the two Normalite editors for this semester, as well as the editor for the only Household Arts issue, and secretary and Student Council representative for the N. C. A. A.

The forte of this class seems to be athletics. Three championship teams to their credit, the runner-up team in hockey, as well as owning the volleyball manager. As Lower Juniors they won the relay race in ice skating. Besides, they boast of individual stars; champion swimmer, champion and runner-up in the tennis tournament, first and second in individual ice skaters' tournament, first and second in beginners' ice skating race, six to pass the life-saving test, and cheer leaders for both boys and girls.

Some of the best short plays given in the assemblies have been written in part or whole by members of this class. The literary ability seems to be one dominant characteristic. Whether poem or play, article or story, there are several capable enough to meet the need.

The prize poem for Girls' Week was written by May C. Alinahan.

Musicians and singers are plentiful. When Doctor Owen looks over the audience for some one to lead the music in assembly, he beckons Mary Kernan. When Miss Bates needed help in the library, the girls responded.

They carry with them the desire for efficiency, the promotion of the best for the good of the school, the aim to make children better for their being teachers, instill the best morals in the children of today that the future may be improved. That is why this class is finishing their first year at Normal and eager to take up the next.

And down through the pages of the college history they have left their footprints, footprints that perhaps no other class has equaled. Behind them (in the year just past) stands their triumphant successes; before them looms much to conquer. So, forward march the conquering bands, five hundred strong with helmets of knowledge, armors of health and strength and pep and courage, spurs of tournaments won. A few have dropped by the wayside, a few have been wounded with flunks and have to tarry. Still they remain the largest class ever in Normal.

Much of their success in Normal lies in their attitude of co-operation. To the Seniors they have given just due. The Seniors have aided them in many ways and they are grateful. So they feel that the Golden Rule that has swung between them and the Seniors will also swing between them and the Juniors when they become honored Seniors.

Lower Junior Class History

The Mid-Year Junior Class History

Attend, all ye who list to hear the Mid-Year Junior's history.

I tell of how we came, and saw, and now want to conquer. We, the largest Mid-Year Class ever entering Normal, because we number nearly two hundred and fifty, came the morning of January 28th, 1924. With palpitating, yet hopeful, hearts we climbed the stairs leading to the large building in which it seemed we were destined to spend many hours. Mr. Owen welcomed us in the Auditorium. Then the assignment to sections began; but Fate smiled on only a few and they were assigned to sections with their friends. Later we saw the wisdom of separating chums for the sections were brought in closer connection.

As the honors won by individuals or groups reflect on the nation so the honors won by some Lower Juniors have reflected honor on the Class. Some have won honors in swimming, a few were on the All-Star Volleyball Team. Three sections are 100% in the N. C. A. A. and one section won second place in the Volleyball Tournament.

We were slow in electing our officers, but we wanted to be sure. We will finish this semester under the leadership of Ruth Asworth, Sue Mechter-heimer and Agnes Murphy.

And so ends this history. We are looking forward to September when we will be Upper Juniors. We are human and Lower Juniors and so have made mistakes, which, we hope, will be pardoned, as we have much to learn.

The Kindergarten Department

Up in the northwest corner of the second floor of the College Building are two and a half rooms, the half being a sort of referee —sancto Sanctorum, between the sacrilegious sounds that come bounding out of these two rooms aforementioned.

There, anytime before school, between periods, at lunch and after school, may be found, seen and observed the well-known kindergartners. It's really a matter for serious consideration, this helter and skelter of girl-talk, singing and laughing; but an excuse for it may be offered in that we are getting ourselves into the proper childish atmosphere to deal with four to six-year olds.

Miss Russell and Miss Farwell are the two splendid teachers who put us through our paces and give us inspired boosts all through the two years. They have not lost the spirit they had while teaching little children, which accounts for the good-hearted feeling between them and the girls, and also gives a valid reason for these kindergarten frolics that are enjoyed so much.

The congenial feeling among the 3 Kgs., is pretty well expressed in the following song:

We're the little III Kgs., III Kgs., III Kgs.,
We're the little III Kgs. of Normal College.
We love you, we bet you,
We'll never forget you,
O, we're the little III Kgs. of Normal
College,
Small, but oh my, so fond of each other and everything.

As we go to press the Upper Seniors still claim the title, "Champion Non-Flunkers of Normal." We've had just a whiz of a time together, had a pleasant and practical experience in practice and now, that it's time to go, we don't even want to think of being scattered to the four winds of the Chicago School System. We can only wish the other kindergarten classes as happy and peppy a time as we have had.

Don't they tell you about her?

Basketball

From the standpoint of the percentage column, basketball was a decided failure. Not only did we tie for the cellar in the league, but we were unsuccessful outside the league. But on the other hand, we are handicapped by having few boys to draw from. The fellows we have are exceptionally light. We make up for this, however, by speed. Taken all in all, our team was a snappy, scrappy, fast little aggregation and shows promise for greater things next year.

Captain Leonard Teuscher.—Lennie played on the first team ever turned out at Normal. He was chosen as captain of last season's team. He was a dependable floor man, spending most of his time on it. It was his fight, his never giving up that made him a conspicuous figure on the basketball floor. He graduates in February.

Captain-elect, George Peacock.—Do you remember way back when you saw those beautiful high arched shots? Well, that's George. He was the star of the team. The fastest man in the league, he was extremely dangerous to the opposition's state of mind. George very well deserves the captaincy for next year's squad.

Louis Cook.—Teddy jumped center on last season's squad. His long build, speed and playing ability cut him out for as clever a guard as he was a forward. He will be back next year to aid in winning the cup.

John Butler.—Micky, our wild and woolly Mexican guard. Played a strong and steady game at guard. He is leaving us in June and goes with the well wishes of all his friends.

Ernest Lieberson.—Lieb was another fighter. He played running guard for last season's team. The low total of points scored against us shows how well he co-operated with Butler in watching our basket. He is graduating in February.

Louis Delveaux.—Looie, so-called, played everything from guard to what-not. He was especially brilliant in the latter. He was a clever floorman, giving promise of great things for the future. He will be back next year with an eye on the cup. So long until next year, Looie.

Harry Fuller.—Cy was utility center and forward. An expert shot and jelly bean inhaler. He'll be back next year and he says he likes silver cups.

The Subs.—Murphy and Gleason were our subs and, with the exception of Gleason, will be back for next year's team. Murphy was inexperienced, but has improved. Ed. Middendorf and George Balling were managers.

Baseball

For the first time in its career, the Chicago Normal College was represented this year in the Northern Illinois Junior College Conference by a real live baseball team.

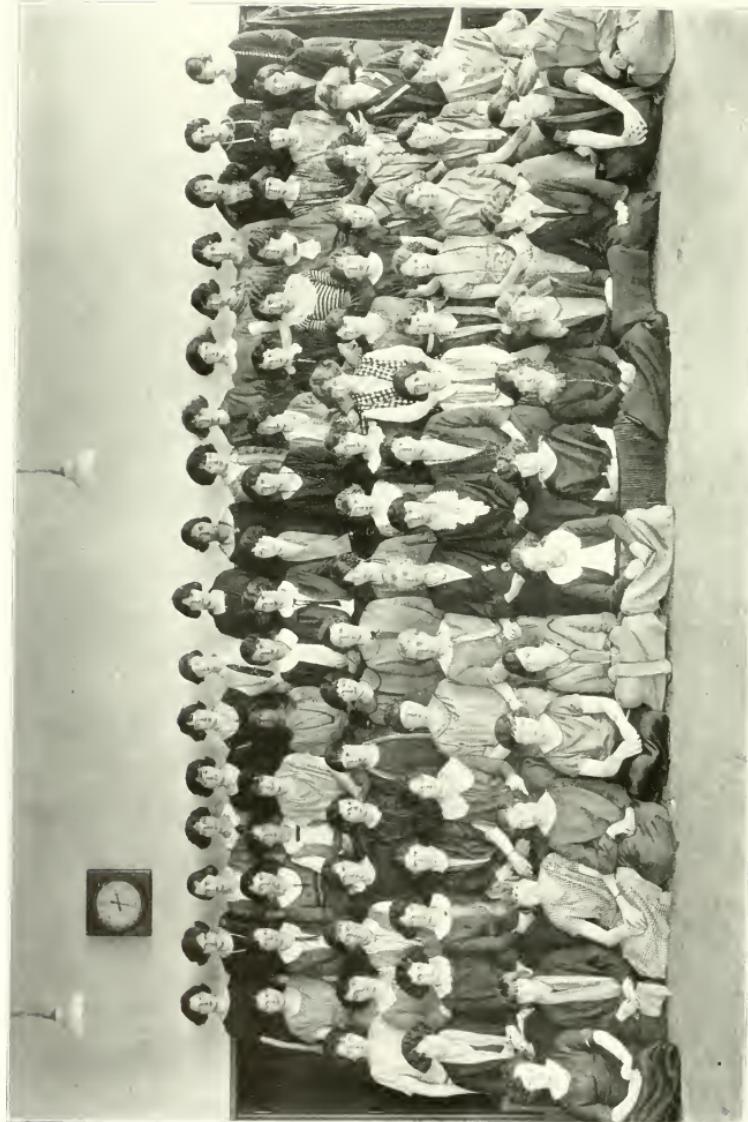

Early in the spring, while the snow was still on the ground, the boys of the Manual Training Department held a very enthusiastic athletic meeting and a baseball team was organized. Mr. Thoren, our popular printing instructor, volunteered his services as coach which he very ably filled until May 15th. Mr. Mittendorf and Mr. Itten were selected as managers and all the boys in the Manual Training Department were eligible for the team. While the boys were busy practicing, our industrious managers, after much correspondence, arranged a schedule of fourteen games. Six of these were conference games, the remainder were practice games. Of the conference games, Normal won two and lost four, finishing in fourth place in the conference standing.

During the spring vacation the boys played four games, two being out of town, one at Rensselaer, Indiana, where St. Joseph College was played and at Lisle, Illinois, where Lisle College was played.

The personnel of the team was as follows: Mr. Thoren, coach and faculty adviser; Mittendorf and Itten, managers; Delveaux, captain and pitcher; Peacock, pitcher and third base; Daily, short stop; Butler, second base; Cook, first base; Padden, Merrick and Kriewitz made up the outfield, and Johnson, Fuller, Rosenblum and Kirschner were substitutes.

The showing made by the team this year was very good considering that it was their first year, and as practically the entire team will be back next September, the prospects are very bright for a 1000% team next season.

HOUSEHOLD ART DEPARTMENT

Household Arts Department

Of course we think our work and our department most interesting, why else would we have chosen it in preference to another? The course offered is a very specialized one, including, besides our academic subjects, those that are particularly interesting to us in preparation for our future professions. In a shining white kitchen, under the direction of Miss Swain, Miss Page, Miss Grake and Miss Freeman, we learn to plan and prepare the most delicious and appetizing of meals. Another feature of this preparation is the sewing work directed by Miss Milner, Miss Frake and Mrs. Jordan. Besides the making of garments for ourselves, a most interesting feature is the production of frocks for grammar grade pupils, the Parker Practice girls acting as models.

Forming a unified group of people interested in the same things, we cannot help but find our work interesting and our good times thoroughly enjoyable. But we realize that our special interests should not make us one-sided. Hence you find our girls represented in every activity in the school, clubs, swimming, folk dancing, uke. S. D. C., and inter-sectional teams.

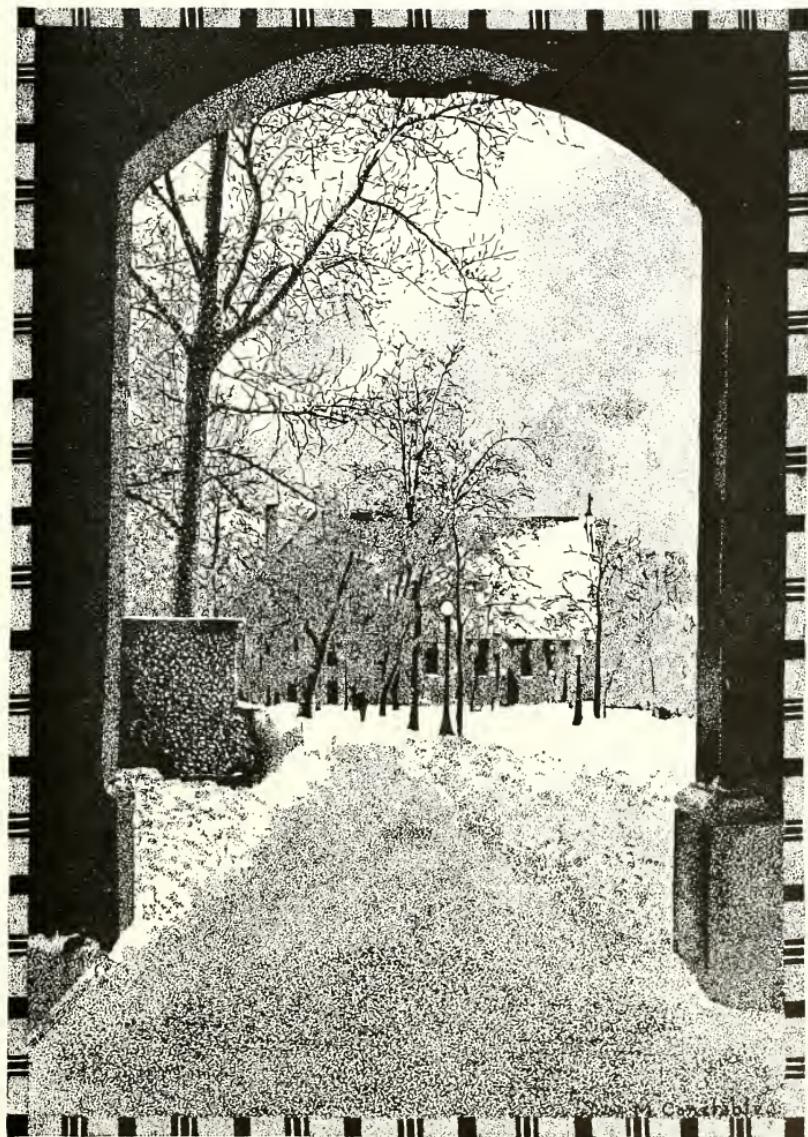

This year the enrollment in the H. A.

Department has far exceeded that of any other year and we are now the largest specialized department of the college. Is not this proof positive of the growing interest in our course?

Our department did much to help make Girls' Week a success, taking charge of a program at Normal, helping with the Art Institute program, and the like. On Mothers' Day, the first semester girls served a very delightful tea to the mothers of the Lower Juniors. Second semester students enjoy the distinction of being the largest group to enter the H. A. Department. Third semester is planning a very thrilling spread just at present. Fourth semester has had some very successful theatre parties this last semester.

A particularly interesting project is being evolved at present. The formation of a Home Economics Club has taken place, formed of the Seniors. Membership in it is to extend through Senior year and graduate one into the other Home Economics clubs. We are sure that it will be most successful and furnish a long-felt need of organization for good times and service. The officers are: President, Vlasta Rezac; Vice-President, Estelle Hale; Secretary, Evelyn de Vries; Treasurer, Anna Toheny.

Jimmie's Case

By ESTELLE HALE

Yes, Jimmie was home! At last after all these years and years of study and preparation he was home and at work. Fine up-and-coming lad—everybody said so. Everybody, that is, but Jimmie. He had his own opinions. After all this time, studying and anticipating his return home and start in business, that he should find this! The worst of it was that he knew it was in him. If only he might get a trial. A trial—that was it. It wasn't that he didn't have business, for he did, but it was the wrong kind. Why, a child could take care of the cases he had. Oh, yes! If Mrs. Cathers had a cold, or Mr. Wilson a touch of rheumatics, or Miss Watson a bit of a dizziness or such, why young Doc Roth would do. It was nice to give him a little business, but when it came to something more serious they were afraid to try him and his new fangled ideas. Bah! He was sick of the bunch of them. These silly, giggling girls and the equally silly, simpering old women.

Oh, yes, he knew the go-sip. If it came to a party or a dance or a picnic, why his name headed the list. Wasn't he the best catch of the season? Member of a good family—wealthy—why he didn't have to work. It was just a whim of his. Whim!—he'd show them. But how?—doggone it! That was the trouble—how! And now Dad was sort of hinting at his marrying. Who among the girls he knew could be marry? Why there wasn't a one of them that had an idea outside of a good time in their heads. You couldn't discuss a serious subject with one of them if you tried.

What could he do! What could he do! It didn't seem as if he'd ever make a success in that burg. How could one impress people that had scolded him for his pranks, could remember his youthful misdeeds? Why every place he went someone would spring: "Is this Jimmie, little Jimmie Roth? Why I hardly knew you. I can remember when you were only so high." And then when it came to his own generation! Just catch one of them coming to him with anything serious when they could remember playing scrub with him down in his back yard. Wasn't he impressive as a doctor when every other person called him "Jimmie!"

Is there anything more detrimental to high ambition, loads of pep and assurance, than the lack of a place to make use of them? If there were opposition or a chance to show your stuff it would be different, but this cold inattention and lack of appreciation for one's really serious ambitions sort of got one "in the neck," especially if one is young.

It wasn't long after this that a possible solution or chance of encouragement arrived by way of Uncle Jim. Good old Doc Jim! Jimmie bet he understood. Wasn't he the one for whom Jimmie was named? Hadn't he been Jimmie's ideal and the real reason why he had chosen an M. D.'s degree rather than another? The solution came in this form.

"Well, Jim, old sport, I suppose you're just about ready for a vacation. You've been working mighty hard for a whole year now and I guess you need a rest. If you could leave your patients long enough, how about a run down here? I've a mighty interesting case down here that I'd like your opinion on. Think you could make it?"

Leave his practice? Oh, what a joke! If he left immediately it wouldn't make any difference with his patients. Wasn't it just like Uncle Jim to state that he wanted his opinion. Wasn't it just like him to give a fellow credit for having opinions worthy of notice. You bet he'd go just as fast as he could. Anything to get out of this place, if only for a little while. And so Jimmie departed and arrived.

Uncle Jim was just as jovial and interested as ever. It wasn't long before he knew all about Jimmie's "trials and tribulations." That was another thing about Uncle Jim. He accepted them as "trials and tribulations," not just some child-like worry beneath his notice.

It wasn't until he had been there a couple of days and was sort of organized that Uncle Jim mentioned the case he wanted his opinion about. Jimmie had almost forgotten about it, but his interest was easily aroused and one lovely spring morning, Uncle Jim took him to see this patient. Jimmie hadn't thought much about the patient, but he took it for granted that it was a child, for Uncle Jim spoke of it as, "Little Jerrie." He was hardly prepared for what he found.

They drove up to a very lovely home, quite evidently of wealthy people. Uncle Jim was welcomed as if he were a rather frequent visitor. Jimmie followed the Doctor through the house to the back where they entered a very large and lovely sun porch. It was situated so that at all hours of the day it would receive some sunlight and at this time it was flooded with sunshine. It was a charming room. Even as unappreciative as men are supposed to be, Jimmie couldn't help but stop and think for an instant about it; it was so cheery. All the decorations were lovely, cool greens, the furniture, wicker. Everywhere were heaps of bright cushions. Little low tables held books and flowers. Birds twittered in cages. Even a small piano stood in one corner. The windows opened out onto the most wonderful of gardens. There seemed every kind and sort of a flower Jimmie had ever heard of.

Drawn up with its back to the door was an immense easy chair, which evidently held the patient, for it was toward this that Uncle Jim made his way.

"And how's my Little Jerrie this fine morning?" he asked in his cheery voice.

"Just splendid, Doctor Jim," replied an equally cheery but a great deal sweeter voice. Somehow its sweetness gave Jimmie a shock.

"Well, here's that sapegrace nephew of mine I told you about. Come around here, lad, so we can have a look at you." So around came Jimmie to receive another shock, for somehow—he didn't know why—what he saw gave him a jolt. Nearly swallowed up in the huge chair, amidst all the cushions, reclined a little girl—apparently about—well, Jimmie wasn't quite sure about what, but anyhow she was a little girl. Jet black curls fell about her shoulders. The bluest of blue eyes full of little sparkles laughed up at him. As for the rest of her face, all Jimmie knew was that it was mighty pretty and that its skin was the clearest and whitest he had ever seen. He knew, also, that it would have been positively beautiful if it hadn't been so thin. There wasn't a speck of color in her cheeks. Hours of suffering had not but left their mark. But surely they couldn't have subtracted anything from that dear, cheery little smile.

"I'm certainly mighty glad to know you, Doctor Jimmie, the second," said Little Jerrie, in the voice that had somehow given him the second shock. One forgot that Little Jerrie was a patient until one noticed that she reclined instead of sat and that she was mostly covered with a quilt. She seemed such a good sport that Jimmie just hated to see her lying there. She was so little and frail-looking that it stirred him rather thoroughly. Their visit was not long, yet it was long enough for Jimmie to get much interested.

It was on the way home that Uncle Jim explained the case and how it happened that Jerrie was a case. Even though Geraldine Lee was a member of one of the foremost and wealthiest families of the city that did not keep her from being stirred by honest ambitions. (Jimmie could sympathize with her here.) So, after finishing school, instead of following in the usual path, that of being a gay, social butterfly until some nice young man came along and married her, she enrolled as a teacher in one of the settlements of the city.

For two wonderful months she had been thoroughly successful, achieving the joys of work well done. The children adored her and she was fast becoming indispensable. It but added one more score to her huge one of attractiveness, this charming, beautiful, accomplished girl was certainly endowed by the gods.

Then had come that dreadful day. One didn't speak much of it now. The old, rattle-trap of a building in which the school was housed caught fire on the last day of its occupancy, for a new one had just been completed. Old and ramshackle as it was, once the fire had gained headway it did not take long to go up in flames. Due to the perfect control she had over her adoring little pupils, each and everyone of them filed safely before her out of the building. Sure that they had reached safety she hurried back to be of further assistance. It was just as she took a final survey of the rooms to be sure that every one was out and was hurrying out the door that the wall fell.

Hardly anyone knew just what had happened then. Somehow they had at last got her out, but she was a sorry sight. It was days before they thought she would recover from her burns. Joy was universal when it was known that she would. It was not known until later that some injury had occurred to her back. It was not thought especially serious at first, but as weeks went by and she seemed to lose instead of gain, Uncle Jim became worried. A consultation was called of the best physicians procurable and they pronounced the case hopeless. Unless some miracle occurred Little Jerrie would never walk again. They could not even entirely remove her from suffering.

So from an active, healthy, busy girl full of dreams and life and enthusiasm she was a helpless cripple. Helpless, yet inspiring everyone with her jolly, courageous, almost superhuman "carrying on." Everyone adored her from the little children, who e lives she had saved, on up. Everyone knew Little Jerrie. Being such a wee little person as she was with her curls falling about her shoulders, suffering as she did with a soldierly smile, every one was imbued with the desire to protect her—to give somehow a little something to live for to her who had given so much.

Somewhat Uncle Jim had never given up hope and neither had Jerrie. And now Uncle Jim had come down to the real point of his sending for Jimmie. He knew that it was in this spinal work that Jimmie excelled. Uncle Jim was not so young as he had been, his practice was large and he thought that Jimmie might take over part of it and at the same time study Jerrie's case. Perhaps together they might be able to work out some way of helping her.

It is needless to say that there was no hesitation in Jimmie's acceptance. To think that Uncle Jim thought him capable of being his assistant was almost joy supreme, but to think that he considered him capable of working out a method of solution for a case that renowned doctors had given up put him in a state of pure ecstasy.

It was not for purely selfish reasons that he was so happy. He had the true doctor's inspired hope of really relieving humans of the burden that some of them must carry. Doctor Jim was a sly psychologist. Cleverly had he worked up his scheme of presenting the stimulus to arouse the desired response. He knew—had every confidence within him—that Jimmie was made of the real stuff. If Little Jerrie could arouse in him that feeling of protectiveness and desire to help, experienced as he was, with a memory full of interesting cases, surely then young Jimmie just spoiling as he was for an outlet for his energies, young and full of ideas and confidence, would be the ideal person to set at this supreme job. And so Jimmie was.

Crystal clear and cool the day rose flooding the world with glorious beams of sunlight. Ah, this was the day of days. Everything was in readiness. Now, as Jimmie dressed, he could picture the nurses in their trim uniforms preparing the operating room. Through his thoughts passed the last months and he found them profitable. It had not taken many cases to prove his very real ability. He had known that once he had a chance he would prove himself, and he had. He no longer was a boy with a whim, but a man with a purpose. Carefully he had worked out plan after plan and now at last he had reached one that he knew—had every confidence that it would cure Little Jerrie. So had Uncle Jim.

Proud, indeed, was he of his young nephew. Weren't some of the most important and best known surgeons to be present this day at the operation. Ah, yes, there were many dissenters. They agreed that the plan sounded plausible, simple as it was, but it had never been tried. And again—to let such a young chap—why he was a mere boy to them—try something that they had given up was—well, you can see yourself how it was. He had no experience. Then there were the others who brought forth facts that he had proved himself more than once, that he was the very one to do this. It took some one that was young, with a steady mind and hand, not stirred by doubts and conjectures, trained as he was in the latest and best methods.

And as to Jimmie—he was positive of the feasibility of his plan. Oh, to pray heaven that it might be so! Queer how that child had caught his heart. Child, for still, even though he really knew better, he thought of her only as Little Jerrie. At first he had just taken a great interest in her as a case. Gradually, but surely and unconsciously, he had become interested in her as Jerrie. It was to her chair that he took all his problems, his failures and successes. She was like a sister, at least, he thought that she was.

Her interest and her judgment were so keen and sure that Jerrie's approval was something to look forward to. And now—now on this day he was to make the supreme test. For he felt that if he failed he could never face Jerrie again. She was so sure, so confident. Oh, that this of all operations might be successful. Every step had been planned, every emergency prepared for. Oh, God, that he might do it!

Slowly the train gained momentum. If it would only hurry, hurry, hurry. He was filled with that inexplicable longing for something. He took it for granted that it was to get back to his work. He had been away from Uncle Jim for a long time now. The operation had been all that could be expected. His praises had hardly ceased ringing yet. He, a mere lad beside these older, more experienced men, had held them in awe before the perfect execution of his plan. Carefully and almost magically he had followed each step of it to its close. It was when he knew that he had been successful, that Little Jerrie was out of danger, that they had given him the telegram calling him home because of the illness of his father.

He had had to leave his patient in the very capable care of Uncle Jim and now after the death of his father and the settlement of his father's affairs he was returning, and, oh, how glad he was to get back!

Uncle Jim had kept him informed as to the progress of his patient. At first the slow convalescence, then the crutches, and now for the last month a cane. It was only a matter of days before she would be able to walk. Somehow he just couldn't wait to see her. Uncle Jim met him. How was his patient? Which one? Why Little Jerrie, of course! Oh, Little Jerrie, why she was just fine.

Jimmie hadn't realized before just how twinkly Uncle Jim's eyes were. Why he seemed just full of chuckles. No time was wasted between the train and Jimmie's arrival at the Lee's. Jumping out of the machine he dashed up the stairs and through the house on out to the sun porch. Somehow he couldn't think of Jerrie any place but there in her chair. But she wasn't there. Mammy Chloe said she was in the garden, so out there he went and through the arbor.

Shucks! She must have company, for there was a young girl picking flowers, and he had so much to tell Little Jerrie. But then the girl turned around and came running towards him calling, "Oh, Doctor Jimmie!"

Why, why, who was this? This wasn't Little Jerrie—it was Little Jerrie grown up. Oh, no, this wasn't Little Jerrie—it was something more. It took some time for him to change his thoughts of her as a little girl to Jerrie as a big one, but when he did—then he made up for lost time.

And so this story ends as most should and really do end. Doctor Jimmie was so sure that he needed more sistering and Jerrie was so sure that her case needed permanent attention that they came to a very wonderful mutual agreement pleasing to all parties concerned.

Jimmie always thought Uncle Jim was clever, but he never realized just how clever he was!

Dawn

The sun rises,
From the east
Comes the first faint streak of day.
The stars depart
And leave behind only sad memories.
The world awakes
And stirs with life again.
Each night is death;
Death to sorrow and woe.
Each day is birth,
New life, new hope, to start afresh.
The old earth thrills again
With the joy of returning day.
It dances; it sparkles; it glows with joy.
As the sun begins his daily march
Across the sky.
Dawn, like love, is ages old
And yet is ever new.

A Disciple of Terpsichore

By MARION A. KELLY.

The "upper floor back" was certainly not the most delightful place in the world to spend one's leisure hours in; but it was home to Carmelita, and home she came this sultry July day to rest after her labors. Carmelita looked around at the dirty, grimy walls, the faded, splintery floors with more loathing than she usually did. That hateful, cracked mirror that made her look so terrible homely, that rickety old rocker with the broken rungs, the bed with its squeaky springs and lumpy mattress, the threadbare blankets and flat, bumpy pillows—how she detested the whole place and everything in it!

Carmelita herself was a typical "Coles-Phillips" girl, but, strange as it may seem, was serenely unaware of this pleasant fact. Dancing all day on the hot, dusty pavements of New York's "East Side" left her too tired to care just how she looked; and, anyway, that horrid cracked mirror told her she was homely.

There was no denying the fact that Guido could never make so much money as he did without the aid of the black-haired, black-eyed dancer who was his assistant and partner. The wheezy old grind organ churned out antique melodies but the e were forgotten, even unnoticed when the gay Italian beauty danced for her appreciative audiences. Money wasn't very plentiful in those quarters, but still the organ grinder and his partner managed to get along—and even that is better than just existing.

Poor Carmelita, home in her room this night was lone some, tired and blue; lonesome for home and friends, tired from her day's untiring labors and blue from—well, there were a lot of things in her life to make her blue. Homeliness was one thing, lonesomeness was another, and longing for comfort, for beauty was still another. She wanted to be beautiful, see and live among beautiful things, but it seemed that she would be doomed to her present state forever. "Nineteen years old and look at me! Just a common street dancer with not a chance in the world of ever being anything else! I'd be better off dead! What a happy old age I'll have if I continue to be just Carmelita, the street dancer." The evening passed quickly while she bewailed her sad lot and made herself wretched over it.

Whichever fate it is that spins the thread of destiny must have heard these bitter words and bestirred herself to do something about the matter. Shaking off her depression as best she could, Carmelita danced as usual the next day. Toward evening, at the close of a dance, a man made his way through the crowd to speak to her. He belonged, from his appearance, to the well-to-do, civilized-looking, highly cultured type which was almost strange to Carmelita. After a few moments conversation, he put a card in her hand, tipped his hat and departed. Carmelita was pre-occupied and quiet on the way home; Guido was frankly curious.

Home again in that detestable room Carmelita thought and thought. Just how truly had that gentleman spoken? Could she do what he said she could? Was it wise to take the chance? Being a firm believer in the calming, soothing powers of sleep, Carmelita pigeon-holed her worries and went to sleep on the lumpy mattress. Awakened next morning as refreshed as it was possible to feel when that bed was the scene of one's slumbers, the problem remained to be faced. Probably she had never heard that opportunity knocks but once—still after some more quiet deliberation she decided. "Yes!"

Then she thought of Guido. Could he get someone to fill her place? It was a shame to leave him suddenly, but then the offer wouldn't be good forever. Carmelita took her courage in both hands and began immediately to speak when she met Guido as usual that morning.

"Guido, I'm not going to work for you any more after today. That man who spoke to me yesterday is a big theatrical producer. He thinks I dance well and will give me a chance to study. Who knows? I may get to be somebody after a while."

This was indeed a blow for Guido. He wasn't at all angry at her decision, but he was sorry to see her go. Dancers like Carmelita were rare and he fully realized that it would be hard to replace her. When night came and Carmelita was going home, she said good-bye with mixed feelings. Guido was her best friend and she hated to leave him just as much as he hated to see her go.

Next day a timid little Italian girl found her way to the big sky-scraper where that "golden opportunity was to materialize." Presenting the card to the cheerfully whistling, busily chewing office boy, she waited to enter the office of the gentleman whose offer had brought her the promise of so much happiness. Little did she know or dream that the magnate had been waiting, hoping that she would come. The office boy came out, ushered the visitor into the private office and left to continue the exercise of his facial muscles undisturbed. A few minutes' conversation closed the contract—Carmelita to study for a year at his expense and then her debut. Half dreaming, almost tearful in her joy she went home, glad to get there for the first time in months.

A year isn't such a long time when the work you are doing is pleasant, when it is the fulfillment of heart's desire. Almost before Carmelita knew what had happened to her, an immense electric sign at the "Music Box" announced to the public that she had arrived. The critics, after her initial appearance, were effusive in their praise and the pleasure-seeking public, waiting only for the critics' approval, stormed the ticket office to see Carmelita.

Months passed. The new dancer was the rage. She was lionized by all the fashionable people of the city. All her dreams were being fulfilled. The search for beauty, once so hopeless, was ended now, for her beautiful apartment on Riverside Drive was all that could be desired. And now she knew positively that the mirror in the "upper floor back" had lied—she wasn't at all homely.

Friends, indeed, had Carmelita and a number who wished to be more than "just a friend." For a girl of her nationality and to be true to type, she should have been a fiery, impulsive, affectionate girl. However, still as quiet, simple and unassuming as in the old days when she was alone, Carmelita was a charming companion and friend to the many admirers who surrounded her. Gradually her satellites realized that their hopes were fruitless and finally only one remained in the guise of a suitor. Carmelita liked him—yes. Loved him? She hadn't thought seriously of that until he asked her. But now that he had asked the question and deserved an answer, she decided to think about it.

In the early fall when the leaves are turning color but are still enveloping the skeleton tree form, the woods is a haven of beauty, peace and quiet. Always in search of beauty and just at present in search of quiet, the woods was the place where Carmelita betook herself to decide the question.

"All my life I have longed for a career. Now I have one and one that exceeds my wildest expectations. Strange how this good fortune befell me!" So she mused on, thinking of the comforts and pleasures she now enjoyed, tracing the struggles that had brought her thus far. Ray could give her just as much comfort, more, indeed. But would it pay, would she be happy if she decided that her career was not the most important thing in her life? Carmelita did not fool herself; now that the moment had come she knew that she did care more for Ray than for anyone else she knew. The question was, did she care more for her career or for her Ray? In this quiet, restful place she decided after much deliberation and started homeward.

Her car would be waiting on the main road from which she had wandered to be alone with her thoughts. Still thinking (or was it dreaming?) she did not see or hear the car fast bearing down upon her—the driver had lost control—until it was too late.

Many days in the hospital, many days during which she suffered exquisite torture followed. As soon as she regained consciousness after that awful accident Carmelita sent her answer to Ray. "No!"

Specialists from many places gave their opinions about the case. The public was grief-stricken. Ray was completely broken up by the accident and by her refusal. He haunted the hospital day and night, waiting for bulletins. The waiting public wondered and hoped. Would their Carmelita never get well? Was she never to dance for them again? Finally after a series of consultations the verdict was given out.

Carmelita had seriously injured her spine. Her dancing days were over! She would be better after awhile but never again would the name "Carmelita" flicker on the electric signs all through the city.

When the doctors told Carmelita this, they were surprised that she took it so quietly. There was something ominous about that absolute self-control. Anyone so calm and philosophical should get well rapidly, for when her mind was easy her body should recover quickly. Carmelita had never done what was expected of her—why should she begin now?

While the doctors and nurses watched and wondered, while the adoring public continued its solicitude, while Ray still hung on the outskirts hoping against hope that she would change her mind, there was no improvement to speak of in Carmelita's condition. The press reported that her convalescence was very slow, but always held out the hope that each succeeding day would bring better news. The months became a year and gradually Carmelita's friends realized that she no longer wanted to live—she was leaving their circle, the charmed circle for her, as silently as she had entered it. She had given up her love for her career and now that, too, must go. Ray still loved her, but she could never say "yes," now that she was a cripple who could never be cured, when she had refused him before.

Just fourteen months after the "red letter day" Carmelita slipped away, leaving behind her the career which she had so loved, the man who had loved her to the end, and a broken-hearted public.

Prosaic Inability

By MARION E. KANE

I am alarmed; I am dismayed;
I grow morose; all is delayed.
Oh, cruel fate! A sad wind blows,
I cannot write a poem in prose.

My heart beats fast; my pulse does, too;
My spirit's low; there's nought to do
But what I've done each other time—
And that is, write a poem in rhyme.

It matters not how I begin,
How I turn my frown, how broad my grin,
I know not why,—there's no one knows,
I cannot write a poem in prose.

The rhymes, they come into my head,
I try to make them prose instead,
But then they rhyme within the line
So I deny that they are mine.

It can't go on like this, I say,
I'll end it in some tragic way.
The lines rhyme of their own accord;
Then give me poison or a sword.

But none will come to aid poor me,
My heart is breaking rapidly.
All words that rhyme, I count as foes,
I cannot write a poem in prose.

Normal College Athletic Association

N stands for Normalites, happy and gay;

C for our coaches, we can never repay;

A for the all-around girls in our school;

A for our athletes in gym, courts and pool.

This has been a record year in membership in the Normal College Athletic Association, for there have been one thousand members. This large number not only belong to the N. C. A. A. but are real, live, active members. In order to interest so many there must be a great variety of sports. With our increase in membership this year we added many new activities.

The fall season opened with hockey as a major sport. For the first time Normal had an English Hockey Coach, Miss Inrie, from Scotland, to add zest to the season. Captainball and volleyball followed as minor sports. In volleyball the record was reached, seven hundred girls as active members of teams. Our last sport was baseball, played indoors and outdoors, surpassing volleyball for record of teams. In between times we played off two tennis tournaments, one in the fall, the other in the spring, and an ice-skating meet in mid-winter, with swimming and hiking as all-around year sports. Folk dancing and golf have been added this year to make the program complete, with a golf tournament this spring.

And now we've but a word or two,
To gladly thank and give her due,
To one who wisely led us through—
Miss Bussell.

With her to guide us through the year,
N. C. A. A. knew nought of fear.
Hi hopes to keep forever near—
Miss Bussell.

All-Star Hockey

Hockey

Hockey, the first sport of the school year, started in full swing in September. Hockey is a game which gives every section an opportunity to show what it can do. It gives the new girls a chance to become acquainted with one another. It is good fun, it develops the girls physically, and it encourages good sportsmanship and fair play.

We had thirty-four teams playing in the hockey tournament. The final game in the tournament was played Thursday, December 6, and was won by Section 42. This game, played with Section 210, was one of the most exciting in the tournament. The game ended with a score of 0-0. At the end of the five minutes of extra play, the score was still 0-0. After another five minutes the score was 1-0 and Section 42 had the championship.

Edith Mitchell
Manager

Dorothy Kirchoff of Section 201, were in until the final elimination.

It was a great privilege for the N. C. A. A. to have Miss Imrie from Scotland here to coach the hockey captains and All-star Teams. Miss Imrie coached our teams for four weeks, and the training received from her and from our own coaches, Miss Marshall and Miss Swawite, showed to great advantage in the tournament games.

Several members of our All-star Team tried out for the All-Chicago Team which played in Philadelphia during Thanksgiving week for the championship of the United States. Miss Imrie and Miss Bussell were two of the judges of this tryout. Our girls did very fine playing and would have had more chance of being chosen if they had had as much experience with the game as the other players had. Two Normal girls, Florence Munn of Section 42 and Dorothy Kirchoff of Section 201, were in until the final elimination.

Captain Basketball

Although captain basketball was a new sport to the majority of girls they entered into the spirit of the game with their usual vim and pep. The Seniors practiced after school and the Juniors during their gym periods. After four weeks of practice the tournament opened with twenty-nine sections represented. There were thirteen girls on each team, making in all a total of three hundred seventy-seven girls taking part in the tournament.

After the third elimination only Lower Juniors were left to play off the tournament. There was some good, strong competition on this last round, leaving Sections 101 and 103 to decide the championship.

The final game was indeed a hot one, the score see-sawing from one side to another, so evenly matched were the two teams. The game ended with Section 103 the victors, but due to a dispute over timing the game was replayed a few days later. This one, just like the former, was a tight game, but again Section 103 proved victorious with a score of 15-14.

Our coaches Miss Swawite and Miss Marshall deserve a great deal of credit for helping us in making captainball the great success that it was.

Volleyball

The volleyball season of 1924 was carried to a successful close, not only because of the hundreds of enthusiastic Normalites who participated in the two tournaments but also because of the active support the school gave them.

As had been the generally accepted custom of the N. C. A. A. the tournament was scheduled making provisions for a team representing each section. Then all honor and glory to the custom, but custom changed! For behold in the distance loomed a new policy, whereby a second or "B" team was formed for some sections. The interest of the enthusiastic spectators was divided between the "A" and "B" tournaments consisting of 56 teams or about 700 girls.

When the final game of the "A" tournament was played between 122 and 207, crowds turned out to see the contest between two such evenly matched teams. Section 207 was the victor. Section 206 carried off the laurels among the "B" teams.

An All-star Team was chosen from among the various teams. Their first encounter was with the boys of the M. T. Department. Suspense and heart-breaking thrills marked this game. It was a nip and tuck affair that kept the spectators on their feet every minute and ended with a score of 22-21 in favor of the boys.

The All-star Team then met Parker High School. The game started with great pep on both sides, but it looked as though it was a lucky day for those whirlwind youngsters. They played very fast and with great skill. We congratulate Parker and wish them the greatest success in the balance of their games.

Section 207, "Champs," played the Alumni a fast and interesting game and carried away the honors. Congratulations!

In addition to the splendid work of our teams, we must not forget that one of the largest factors in our victories has been the great work of our manager, Marion Kane. She deserves merit and praise for her capable ability in managing the two tournaments of fifty-six teams.

All-Star Baseball

Baseball

Baseball, the greatest and most familiar sport of all, has arrived at last, and every team is waiting full of vim and vigor for its chance to play. Baseball is enjoyed by all, not only by the girls who play but by those who back up their teams when playing.

Baseball has surpassed all other sports in the number of teams taking part. There are thirty-six teams this year playing in the first team tournament and twenty-two in the second team league, making fifty-nine teams in all. The girls are showing skill and interest in the game, each team aiming for the championship. At the date of writing these sections, 42, 202,

Betty Haberstein, Edith Rathjen, Managers

Rathjen; and to the careful and capable management of teams.

203, 208, 210, 122 and 125, seem to be most likely candidates for victory in the first team tournament, while no one will venture to guess the result of the second team tournament. Not every team can win, but all will have the thrill of competition and the joy of team play.

Much credit is due to the managers of the sport for their capable arrangement of schedules and other important details; to the umpires, Miss Bussell, Miss Marshall, Miss Swawite, Miss Wood, Mr. Hinckle, Betty Haberstein and Edith

Life Saving Corps

Swimming

Swimming has become one of the most important activities at Normal. There has been more interest shown for swimming this year than ever before. Sixty girls tried to come into the after-school beginners' swimming class. That shows the pep and interest the girls of Normal have for swimming. There have been two advanced and two beginners' swimming meets, and at both the balcony was packed with cheering onlookers. The advanced swimming class was taught Life Saving and through Miss Bussell's efforts quite a number of the girls have passed the test.

The first inter-section meet was held in November in which Section 31 took first place. The events were: Plunge, diving, relays, and life-saving relay. In the plunge V. Schnaki, Section 31, was first; M. Rosenberg, Section 201, second; M. Thiele, Section 208, third. In the diving E. O'Connell of 206 was first; V. Schnaki of 31, second; and L. Thomas of 33,

Viola Schnaki
Manager

third. Section 4A came out first in the section relays, Section 44 was second; and Section 31 was third. In the life-saving relay Section 4C won, Section 4A was second and Section 210 was third.

In March an individual swimming meet was held. Edna O'Connell came out first; R. Corrigan, second, and M. Caird, third. Edna O'Connell was first in diving, breast stroke and free style; while R. Corrigan broke the Normal Record in the plunge with a distance of 52 feet.

Life-saving is becoming more popular each year and our corps is increasing in size. In the life-saving class all the breaks and carries, surface diving and distance swimming are taught.

In the beginners' swimming meet, held in January, L. Pyle of Section H.A. III, took first place and E. Mackh of the same section placed second.

All-Star Tennis Team

Tennis

Take out your racket, net and ball,
And don't forget both spring and fall;
For to the courts at Hamilton Park,
Our merry players go for a lark.

This has been a banner year for tennis. The schedule was arranged with greater promptness and efficiency than before and a much larger number of students have participated. Then, too, we have advanced a step farther. This is the first time we have arranged a game with an outside school, for this spring we played Wheaton College.

Much of the success of our doubles tournament this spring may be attributed to Marion Tegtmeyer as manager. We are fortunate in having a girl with such skill in playing and in managing tournaments. She has merited second place in the Junior Girl's Ranking List of the Chicago Tennis Association.

Marion Tegtmeyer
Manager

A second step has been taken in organizing a Tennis Club this spring having a membership of two hundred players with Sue Mechtersheimer as chairman. The object of the club is to organize a group of interested players to practice and improve on their knowledge and technique in playing, and to teach the game to beginners. We wish to thank and commend the work of Mr. Wasserman and Miss Tegtmeyer, who coached the members of the club.

Last fall the singles tournament was managed by Dorothy Johnstone.

Marion Tegtmeyer won the tournament and Blanche McHugh was runner-up.

'Tis four blocks to the park you say,
But next year there'll be no such delay;
For we'll have courts in front of our door,
And on the campus you can score.

Folk Dancing

"Come and trip it as you go on the light fantastic toe."

Those who have accepted this invitation dance every Thursday in room 303 under the instruction of Miss Bussell and the inspiration of Mr. Fairbank's piano. They have entertained us on several important occasions.

Skating

The skating meet at Hamilton Park, January 17, closed our first semester sports. A clear pond, clear weather and the thermometer near zero all helped to bring our skaters out ready for the big race. Let us introduce Genevieve Fuchs as winner of the single race and the Lower Juniors in the relay contests.

Hiking

Hiking is the general favorite the year around. With light hearts, heavy lunches and a few "ukes" these fearless hikers went forth in search of adventure under the leadership of Dorothy O'Brien. They were never disappointed, for it's always a real health adventure found at the end of the trail. These hikers are always repaid with rosy cheeks by the wind in fall and the sun in spring. Good luck and health to our merry hikers!

STUDENT SELF-GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

EILEEN LONERGAN, President

WILMA OTT, Vice-President

The Student Self-Government Association

"He who cannot govern himself is a slave."

During the last semester the Chicago Normal College adopted the system of Student Government, which has been tried and successfully carried out in so many schools.

The Normal College has set up a Student Self-Government Association in an effort to build and develop a method of government, through which every member of the College can co-operate in the governing powers and reap every possible benefit, as well.

Every member of the College is a member of the "Student Self-Government Association." All the members are united for common interests. For this reason, it is hoped that Self-Government will be a means of promoting co-operation, loyalty and efficiency among the Students.

Under the Self-Government plan there is, as formerly, a Council. The Council is composed of the Section Chairmen, the Presidents of the Classes and two faculty members, acting as advisors. Through the section chairmen, any student can place her needs or desires before the Council, which in turn will endeavor to set them before the entire association for consideration. The Council has power to act in all matters provided for in the constitution or in other matters which shall be brought to its attention.

Among some of the activities of the College provided for by the Council are the establishing and maintenance of Social Hour, a Book Exchange and a Charities Committee.

Aileen Lavin, the Social Hour Chairman for this semester, has provided very well for the Social Life of the School.

The Student Self-Government Association has, in its hands, the power to do a great many things which will benefit each individual and the school as a whole. As the Constitution now stands it is merely a foundation on which to build a strong, efficient government.

The Officers of the Association are: President, Eileen Lonergan; Vice-President, Wilma Ott; Secretary-Treasurer, Agnes Bradley.

Senior Dramatic Club

In October, 1905, a very exclusive club was organized, admitting—by tryout—Upper and Lower Seniors. This club, the S. D. C., has since become very well-known throughout the college.

Each semester the try-out is held, giving all Seniors the opportunity of reading some selection before the judges, who are members of the Faculty.

The ones admitted, then, find a great deal of pleasure preparing a stunt for the entire college. This stunt is given after solemn initiation. No student, during her period at Normal, should graduate without seeing one of these performances. Initiation is a sensation which a member never forgets.

Two plays, under the kind and wonderful direction of Virginia W. Freeman, are given each year. These, in the past, have been successful and enjoyable.

TO MISS FREEMAN

We, the members of the S. D. C., wish to express our appreciation for the help and kind efforts given to us so freely, thus making our plays and work successful.

We also wish to thank Mr. Hinkle for his interest and co-operation, Mr. Thoren for his services in printing tickets and programs, Mr. Shepherd for the many favors granted us, and Robert French of Parker High School, art director for our plays.

"The Boomerang"

On Friday, January, 18, 1924, the Senior Dramatic Club of the Chicago Normal College gave its fifty-fifth semi-annual play—"The Boomerang," by Winchell Smith and Victor Mapes.

This play, a comedy in three acts, was a "take off" on a young physician just opening his office. With the aid of a very interesting stenographer who played the part of a nurse, friend and helper to the doctor, he became very great, with an abundant practice. The characters all played their parts very successfully.

"Dulcy"

By George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly

When: May 23, 1924.

Where: Chicago Normal College Auditorium.

Who could be a more charming "Dulcy" than Bernice Mahoney? I don't believe anyone could compare! Marion Ohlenroth, as Gordon Smith, is a wonderful husband for Dulcy.

Mr. and Mrs. Forbes, played by Esther Grove and Gertrude Erickson, certainly make a good mother and father for "Angela," played by Anna Young. She is a regular "1924 flapper," who is quite fickle and in love with everyone. Anna has "dem" eyes which make her a real Angela.

After seeing the play, one might wonder if Wilma Ott is as good looking a girl as she is as "Bill." But, we assure you, she's even better.

Cecilia Welker, as Schyler Van Dyck, represented well the Van Dyck millions. A regular advertising engineer was Agnes Nestor, who could give her "line" as most advertising engineers do. Marion Keane should go into the "Movies;" she displayed her wonderful talent as a Scenarist!

Attorney Patterson, Florence Richardson, came in just in time to get Van Dyck as most attorneys appear at the wrong time.

It wouldn't be Dulcy's home if there wasn't the able-bodied Henry, played by Astrid Sandstrom, who always did her duty. The cast says it owes the success of the play to Miss Freeman's untiring efforts.

Fellowship Club

The Normal Fellowship Club is the outgrowth of an inspiring desire to have a definite organization to promote a spirit of good fellowship throughout the college. It had its beginning in November, 1922. The Club began with a charter membership of twenty and now numbers about three hundred.

The work of the Club is divided between two committees, the social and the service committee. The service committee took care of the Christmas baskets; the planning and the carrying out of this holiday program brought much cheer to some Chicago families. The Fellowship

Club provided the carol singing at Christmas time and brought to the school a real Christmas spirit. The social committee has secured such good speakers for the club, as Judge Mary Bartelme, foreign students of social service, and some of the members of our own faculty. Last year the club co-operated with other student bodies in the city to promote a spirit of good fellowship among various members of the city's professional schools. Many of the girls will long remember the quiet afternoons of pleasant companionship with one another while doing service work in the form of sewing.

The Normalite

In 1922 one thin sheet known as "The Normal Project" was inserted in the weekly issue of the Parker High School paper. That was the beginning of our present college weekly. Harriet Smith, the first editor, was soon followed by Mary Ann Svoboda, who successfully carried it through the spring semester of 1923, although many times its success hung in a balance.

Last September, Mary Ann launched the paper as a college weekly and called it "The Normalite." Misgivings as to its financial success were voiced by seniors and faculty. But the hearty co-operation of the incoming class assured the success of the paper.

The editors-in-chief were changed every ten weeks. Each editor brought some progressive step. Advanced subscriptions proved successful under Audrey Burdt, "Make the paper a college organization," which called for one hundred per cent subscription from the student body as well as their interest and contribution was introduced with Elizabeth Sheffield. Florence Hammack's aim was to make the paper bigger and better. A taste of this was given in one double issue during the last ten weeks.

The commencement issue was a welcomed innovation. Harriet Smith edited the issue in January, 1924, and Mary Ann Svoboda, the one in June, 1924. In March, the Mammal Training groups put out an issue with William Dempsey as editor-in-chief. The Household Arts proved their ability to edit as well as cook with an issue in May with Helen Ryan as chief.

Careful management of the finances by the business managers, Leonard Teuscher and George Johnson, did much to bring success.

As the paper became more successful better organization of the staff was undertaken and it became possible to select the material as well as consider the symmetrical arrangement of the paper, a few pictures, variety, artistic points and numerous other improvements to help the college paper reach the highest standard.

OFFICERS

President Dorothy O'Brien
Vice-President Ruth Scott
Secretary-Treasurer Gertrude Erickson

Early last semester a Normal enthusiast who answers to the name of Dorothy O'Brien organized the so-called Ukulele Club. The purpose of this club is to teach the girls to play various songs which are particularly pleasing with the uke accompaniment. Last semester there were seventy-five members; this year there are sixty-five members.

We spend the hour between two and three o'clock on Monday afternoons in playing various songs. Our president has proved to be a very capable and efficient director. She has taught us several of the latest hits, such as "Dream Daddy," "Dreamy Melody," "It Aint Gonna Rain No More" (Do you all remember that volleyball game?), and "Song of Love." No doubt these strains will be heard on the beach of Lake Michigan many times this summer. We have played at several volleyball games and it is probable that we will play at an assembly soon—miracles do happen once in a while, don't you know?

We wish to encourage many more girls to join our ranks next fall. Are you with us?

WHY SECTION 48 HAS THE BIG HEAD

Mr. Hinkle—"I know how annoying it must be, Miss Van Wagner, to keep looking at me, but just multiply that by twenty-one and see what I have to face."

She—"I don't like promiscuous kissing."

He—"I don't like a crowd around, myself."

He—"Je t' adore."

She—"Shut it yourself. You came in last."

—Juggler.

"What's the difference between an elephant and a wheelbarrow, Mike?"

Mike thought and thought and finally replied, "To tell the truth, I couldn't state any real difference."

"You'd be a terrible one to send for a wheelbarrow."

Zoology teacher—"Which is more destructive, worms or squirrels?"

Pupil—"I really don't know. I never had squirrels."

"Have you read 'Finis'?"

"No, what is it?"

"It's the last word in books."

Belle—"Shall we tango?"

Hoppe—"It's all the same to me."

Belle—"Yes, I noticed that."

She—"What time did you get home?"

He—"A quarter of twelve."

She—"Your mother told me it was three."

He—"Well, isn't three a quarter of twelve?"

The geography class was in session and the teacher pointed a finger to the map on the class room wall.

"Here on the one hand, we have the far-stretching country of Russia. Willie," she asked, looking over her pupils and settling on one small boy at the end of the class, "what do you see on the other hand?"

Willie, hopeless with fright, hesitated a moment and then answered, "Warts."

Country school teacher (on a country school teacher's salary)—"If each child will bring an egg to school tomorrow, I will show you how Columbus made one stand on end, and if you cannot get an egg, why just bring a piece of ham."

MOTHER'S LITTLE MAN

Little Jimmie, aged two years and three months, climbed on a chair and after a breathless moment of balancing just escaped a fall.

Seeing this, his mother reproached him tenderly, "Aha! Jimmie, aha!" she said, "Who just had a scare?"

"Mamma did," replied Jimmie coldly.

—L' Echo de Paris.

Small nephew—"Tell us about the time you were frozen to death at the North Pole, Uncle Jack."

Small niece—"No, Uncle Jack, please tell us about the time you were killed by wild Indians."

Practice student—"Johnny, what is sympathy?"

Johnny—"Feeling for somebody."

Practice student—"Give an example."

Johnny—"Playing Blind Man's Bluff."

In almost any classroom—"Why were you so late this morning, Miss Smith?"

Miss Smith—"The bell rang before I got here."

The shades of night were falling fast,

When from this earth a Junior past;
And ere they laid him in the ground,

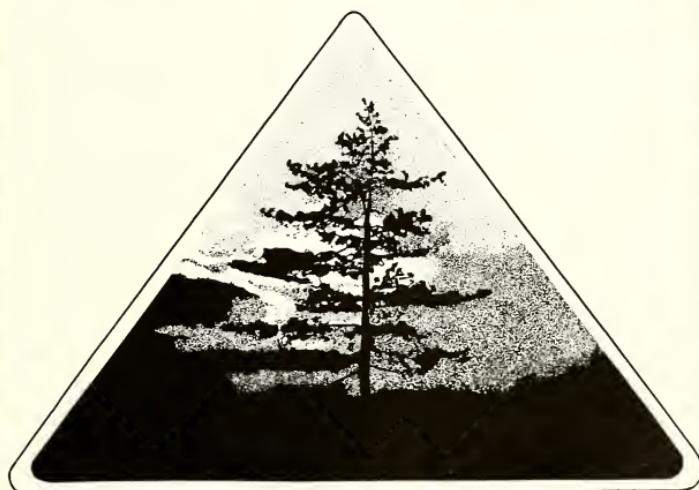

They opened up his head and found
 . . . Excelsior.

Miss Cabell—"Tomorrow we will take the life of Benjamin Franklin. Please come prepared."

Posted in a woman's college by the instructor in anatomy—"Anyone desiring to look at Venus, please see me."

Ford would make a good president because the country needs a good shaking up.

Correct weight is essential to the Health and Progress of the School child and of the teacher. Continental Health Scales are being used in schools everywhere to check the proper development of the children. It is a fact that mal-nutrition and tardy mental development bear a close relation to each other. Weight is the best single index of general health.

Teachers desiring to increase, decrease, or maintain their weight will find the Health-O-Meter in their home an invaluable guide.

ACHIEVEMENT

The goal of every ambitious man and firm is gained in the rapid growth of the Jahn & Ollier Engraving Company—the universal esteem in which their art and plates are held by the large national advertisers—and the enviable reputation for prompt deliveries which they enjoy.

Delivering this same high quality and careful personal supervision to schools has built up for us the largest college and high school book engraving business in America—500 books yearly.

Thirty thousand square feet of floor space (4 floors) and over two hundred and fifty skilled employees are required to meet the constant demand for "J&O" commercial photographs, art, color process plates and photo engraving (one complete floor is devoted to color process work).

Intelligent supervision of all work by many skillful office service men eliminates your troubles. Sales service men sent everywhere.
